Awaiting Andrew ...

As of noon Tuesday, all local shelters had been opened and voluntary evacuations were underway while Civil Defense Director Bobby Boudin and the county supervisors surveyed the county to assess the early effects of Hurricane Andrew. The senior citizen shelter at Hotel Reed Nursing Center and the handicapped shelter at the Main Street United Methodist Church day care center had been opened at 10 a.m., while the other shelters — the Bay St. Louis-Waveland and Hancock County public schools — opened at noon.

Some Hancock County scenes earlier this week (clockwise from top left): The Crane residence, 426 Beach Blvd. in Waveland, offers a challenge to Hurricane Andrew through its plywood protection; rising tides make Beach Blvd. near Bayou Cadet impassable as of 10:30 a.m. Tuesday; city and county leaders meet Monday at the Civil Defense office in Bay St. Louis to discuss plans; and Albert Bell of Bay St. Louis takes his son Phillip and nephew Brandon swimming Tuesday morning as the winds of Hurricane Andrew cause the tide to rise dramatically. "I wanted the kids to be able to play in deeper water, by the beach," he said. Bell said they planned to depart long before any dangerous winds arrived. (Photos by T. H. ## Memories and more

'Miss Mae' celebrates 91 years

BY TRACI BONNEY
Tomorrow is a very special day for Bay St. Louis resident Mae Tudury. It's her 91st birthday.

Mrs. Tudury, known to many as "Miss Mae," is the wife of the late Theo Tudury. She's quick to point out that she currently has no boyfriend.

She's also quick to say that although she doesn't know how much more time she has on this earth, her mother made it past 100.

"She was a very determined woman," Miss Mae commented, shaking her head softly. "She said she'd live to be 100, and she did. One hundred years, one month and 12 days."

Miss Mae has had a variety of vocations, as well as a long and colorful career of civic service.

"I've had boarders, bingo, just about everything under the sun," she said, laughing. "I had a lot of boarders with the telephone company, when they were first putting in the long distance lines here. The men used to call me Maw."

"One of them, Scott, never could let a plate pass at the dinner table without taking a helping. I said if I ever had another grandson, I was going to name him Scott." (She got her wish.)

She also worked with the Parks and Playground Commission for 16 years in the late '40s and '50s, only two years on salary. She served as chairman 13 years, during which time she planned, set up and supervised the cleanup, beautification and maintenance of nine city parks.

She is probably best remembered by many for her key efforts in organizing the Bay St. Louis Little League baseball program. A ball player herself in junior high school, she made her backyard available in later years to the local children.

Friends of the Cross make cross-country trek

BY T.H. (DOC) TOUPS

Jim Murphy is a Catholic lay evangelist on a mission; he is walking across the United States on a journey he describes as "A Journey of Proclamation and Reconciliation."

The Michigan native began his trek in St. Augustine, Fla., and is headed for Sonoma, Calif.

His walk is part of the National Prayer Pilgrimage, an event sponsored by Friends of the Cross Communications, Inc., a Catholic ministry of evangelization.

Murphy is the only participant walking the entire route, though other members of Friends of the Cross and casual followers join him at various points.

The cross he and followers take turns carrying is unique. It was constructed of wood taken from Franciscan missions. The cross upright is from a mission in St. Augustine and the beam from a mission in Sonoma.

District 93 runoff delayed

The House District 93 Democratic runoff set for Tuesday was postponed because of Hurricane Andrew.

Voters in the northern part of Hancock County were to cast ballots for either Joe B. Rouse of Gulfport or Harry Frierson of Kiln, but U.S. District Judge Rhessa Barksdale signed an order Monday to delay the runoff. Also affected are District 93 voters in Harrison, Pearl River and Stone counties.

Also delayed were Jackson County's Senate District 51 Democratic runoff between Beth Krebs of Ocean Springs and Sen. Thomas E. Robertson of Moss Point, and two Harrison County races for supervisor and Justice Court judge.

Barksdale did not set a new date, but Mississippi Democratic Party chairman Ed Cole said the elections will probably be held September 1 or 8.

Thoughts for meditation:
 We are not at our best when we are perched at the summit; we are at our best climbing—even when the way is steep.
 Lord, I know that the battles, the uphill climbs must be faced—help me "keep to the paths of the righteous." Amen

My finite mind cannot grasp all that You have in mind for your creation. This only adds to the joy and expectations of each new day. Amen.

evolved the Little League, which was established in the 1950s.

Miss Mae's work in setting up the parks and the Little League—as well as her many years of volunteer service with the March of Dimes, her work as Bay St. Louis Centennial treasurer, and fund raising efforts for rebuilding the city pier, sand beach and beach road which sustained hurricane damage—was recognized by the community in 1958, when she was named Citizen of the Year. In 1960, she was named Woman of the Year for her outstanding work with youth.

Judging from her many organization memberships, you probably had to call a meeting just to get her to slow down for a few minutes during the '50s, '60s and '70s.

According to a 1973 article written about Miss Mae, she had at that time been: a charter member of the American Legion Auxiliary Post #139; chairman of the Child Welfare board for eight years; a member of the Coast Mental Health Association's board of directors for five years; committee chairman for the Hancock General Hospital Auxiliary (the Pink Ladies); president of the Ladies Woodmen Circle for 12 years; president of the local North American Benefit Association chapter two years and chairman of the NABA group that furnished $2,200 for a chapel at Hancock General Hospital.

Mae Tudury—1973

Miss Mae not only spearheaded the effort to raise funds for the chapel, but she helped promote the building of the hospital.

The article from 1973 goes on to say she had been committee chairman for the United Fund; vice president of the Hancock Blood Bank four years and a volunteer 10 years; treasurer of the Cancer Crusade; a member of the Heart Fund, Red Cross and Crippled Children Association; St. Joseph's Parents Club president three years, during which time she helped organize the SJA Carnival Ball; chairman on many committees of the St. Stanislaus Mothers Club and an organizer of the Harvest Ball, which helped raise funds for band uniforms and a bus; a member of Friends of the Library for the City-County Public Library; and a member of the Bay St. Louis Little Theatre, where she won the Best Actress 1952 Award.

Perhaps her crowning achievement in civic service, however, was her work with the March of Dimes. In 1973, she was recognized for 35 years of service to the organization. She was the only volunteer in the nation to be so honored at that time.

For all this, she was named a "Beautiful Activist" in 1973 during the Beautiful Activists program sponsored by McRae's, Germaine Montell Cosmetics Corporation and the Garden Clubs of Mississippi, Inc. She was one of 18 women statewide to be so honored.

Her living room wall testifies to her activities; many framed certificates bear silent witness to her community, state and national volunteer work.

In fact, Miss Mae's whole house can tell you her story, with some narrative help from her, of course. Every picture, every memento, antique or treasured piece of stuff carries a bit of her history, and she—despite 91 years of memories—can tell you what bit of history most of those things contain.

If you visit Miss Mae, you'll most likely end up taking a tour of the place. She'll tell you with great emphasis, "Honey, you don't think I've got some stuff? I'll tell you, I've got some stuff."

It's really no big surprise; she's lived in the same house on Main Street for years. She also lived in the neighboring house; it was her original residence.

"I've lived all up and down Main and DeMontluzin," she said.

Although her community work has slowed down in recent years, she still cuts a pretty lively figure. Many downtown residents and business people see Miss Mae walking around the area pretty regularly on her routine business.

Although she never said it, it wouldn't be surprising to find out she's trying to break her mother's longevity record.

Correction

In The Sea Coast Echo issue of Aug. 23, 1992, there appeared on the editorial page a column titled "Whose $$$ is it?" with a standing head attributing the column to U.S. Congressman Gene Taylor.

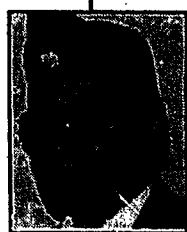

Due to a production error, the weekly column should have been headed by a standing head for U.S. Senator Trent Lott.

The corrected heading and column appears on page 1A of this issue of The Echo.

The Sea Coast Echo regrets this error.

Ask the Veteran's Service Center

By Donald Mauffray
Veteran's Service Officer

CHAMPVA, education discussed

Q. Are the dependents of veterans with service-connected disabilities eligible for medical benefits under CHAMPVA?

A. No. The only dependents eligible for health benefits from the Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) are dependents of Veterans who are rated permanently and totally disabled from service-connected causes, who died as a result of a service-connected disability or who were rated permanently and totally disabled from service-connected conditions at the time of death. In addition, dependents must be a VA-recognized spouse or widow(er) and child(ren) of the veteran.

Q. I am a totally disabled veteran who has been married and divorced twice. I have two children from each marriage, whom I support. Are the eligible for any Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) education benefits?

A. Yes. Under the Survivors' and Dependents' Educational Assistance program, VA education benefits are available to children of veterans who died or who are permanently and totally disabled as the result of a service-connected disability. Your divorces do not affect their eligibility, nor do your children have to be in your custody or supported by you. They may pursue any educational program except flight training. Children generally must be between 18 and 26 to receive benefits. They may even be married and retain their eligibility.

Q. Does the Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) offer educational counseling to help veterans determine how to use their educational benefits?

A. Yes. Individuals eligible for educational benefits under Educational Assistance for Persons Enlisting for Active Duty, the Montgomery GI Bill (active and reserve), or the Veterans' Educational Assistance Program are eligible for educational and vocational counseling. Counseling may be provided on active duty or after separation. Individuals, except those with dishonorable discharges, who are otherwise ineligible for educational benefits may receive counseling within 180 days of separation or up to one year after discharge.

Q. Are the proceeds from national Service Life Insurance considered as income for a VA Improved Pension?

A. Yes. My husband died owing the Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) $3,000. My only income is from Social Security. Must I pay his debt?

A. No. You are not responsible for your husband's debt. Q. If I purchase a home using a VA-guaranteed home loan, will my spouse's income be considered?

A. The veteran's and spouse's income are considered in determining the ability to repay the loan.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

Veterans of the area have had their eyes and ears focused on the news of Hurricane Andrew for the past several days, trying to figure where it may strike land. Those who weathered Hurricane Camille need not be told of the dangers of what a hurricane can do.

Andrew, a Class 4 hurricane, is one of a very serious nature and all precautions should be taken.

Weather forecasters do their best to predict the direction on hurricanes, but they can change and it is really hard to pinpoint a true course.

All we can do is hope for the best.

I know one thing for sure, many residents have packed their bags and left the area, especially those residing in the low areas.

Hancock County's Civil Defense Department, under the direction of Bobby Boudin, began meeting with county and officials from Bay St. Louis and Waveland early Monday, making preliminary plans and carrying them out.

Red Cross volunteers under the direction of Jeanne Garcia made early preparations, too.

It was hard to find a battery, candle, loaf of bread, duct tape, lantern fuel, bottled water and several other necessary storm preparation items Tuesday evening.

Grocery stores, convenience stores (especially those selling gasoline) lumber yards, hardware stores, dry goods stores, and drug stores, all did a booming business on Monday.

Everyone should be commended on the way they have conducted themselves during this crisis.

As I write this column, it is not known for sure the exact area Andrew will strike, and like everyone else, I am hoping and praying it will not hit us head on.

Even if it continues at its present course, we will feel some of the storm here in Hancock County.

This issue of The Echo is being printed a day earlier than normal in order to give our employees time to make preparations. Some live in low-lying areas and had to evacuate their residences.

Weather permitting, the St. Stanislaus Rock-A-Chaws will open their 1992 high school football season against Ocean Springs Friday.

It will be held at Rock-A-Chaw stadium with kickoff set for 7:30 p.m.

Normally this is a jamboree game, but Ken Lyons, head Rock mentor, reports that it will be considered a regular scheduled game this year.

Stanislaus is fielding a young squad this season with only a few returning lettermen from the 1991 team.

A lot of enthusiasm is among the squad of 54 or so, who hope to see a lot of action this year.

Just like any other team, how good the squad at Stanislaus is this season will depend upon how they do in the first couple games, Lyons said.

Bay High's Tigers, Hancock High's and Pass Christian's Pirates regular season games will be the following Friday, Sept. 4.

Bay High will host East Central this Friday in a pre-season game at J.D. McCullough Stadium starting at 7:30 p.m.

The Hawks too will be in a pre-season jamboree Friday at Biloxi High Yankee stadium.

The Pirates of Pass Christian plays host to a jamboree for several high school teams set for 6 p.m. tonight at their Pass stadium.

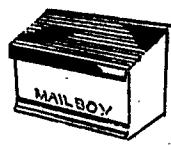

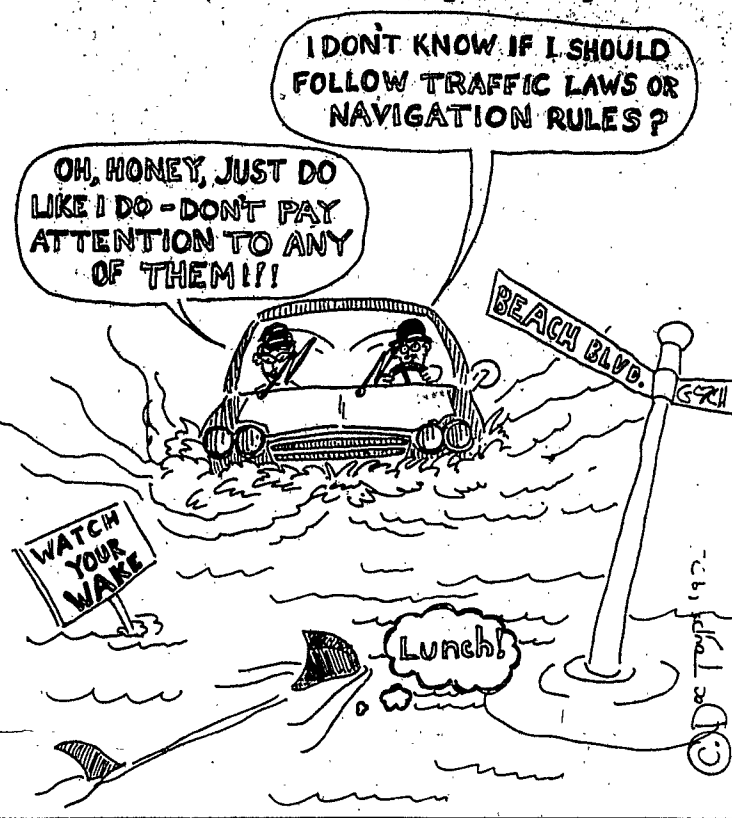

So it seems we will have 11 or so weeks of good high school football action getting ready to roll.

Our local teams need good fan support and I am hoping the stands will be filled for all games.

See you at the high school football game.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Vandalism at cemeteries must not go unpunished

Dear Editor:

The photo of a casket ripped out from a tomb in Riverside Cemetery disgusted a lot of people, myself included!

It's hard to believe that someone can be so demented to do something like this! Some people have such sick, weak minds!

Could this be simply the sick idea of some very curious youths or, perhaps the attempts of a devil-worshipping cult? If this latter is true, then it can signify a very dangerous situation that must be corrected before we have some tragic things occur!

I personally have several family members buried in Bayou La Croix and Wolf River cemeteries, and I was very dismayed to discover just a year or so ago that some vandals had stolen the decorative caps from the fence posts around several graves in Bayou La Croix and that some others had shot up the granite monuments and religious statues in some other cemeteries. These are acts of cowards!

It is indeed unfortunate that these cemeteries happen to be located in isolated, remote areas, but if the perpetrators of such stupid, sick acts can be caught and severely punished, then perhaps word will get around among other mindless individuals and our dead will have some peace at last!

Sincerely,
Paul D. Gilbert

FROM THE SENATE

By Senator
Trent Lott

Whose $$$ is it?

Sheldon Richman, a senior editor at the Cato Institute, wrote recently that Congress treats the taxpayer's purse as if it "belongs to them" and that government thinks it "knows how to spend your money better than you." He also observed that politicians believe spending stimulates economic growth.

He rightly asks the question: "Whose money is it anyway?" I know, as you know, that it's your money. Congress should be better stewards of it.

What those who want to continue to increase taxes forget are these words—what government gives, it must first take away.

When Ronald Reagan, a Republican Senator and a conservative-controlled House gave us a tax cut in 1981, it ushered the longest period of sustained economic growth in our history. Roughly 18 million new jobs were created.

That was all taken away with new taxes in 1986, 1988 and 1990. Now in 1992, some are proposing even more tax hikes.

The majority in Congress has it backwards. Government shouldn't tax and spend its way out of a recession, it should cut taxes and wasteful spending.

A measure currently before the Senate is being called the Urban Aid Bill. It turned into a $31 billion revenue act with only $5.5 billion designated for enterprise zones. This happens all too often, when a tax bill comes through Congress and gets loaded with all kinds of non-related items. But even though the bill has much of its identity, it surprisingly has some attractive qualities. The bill contains six of the president's seven economic growth proposals including: first-time home buyer credits; investment tax allowance; alternative minimum tax simplification; passive loss relief; modified real estate investment rules for pension funds; and IRA flexibility.

The problem with many of these "good" proposals though, was that they were altered. For example, the request for a home buyer credit was cut in half and would only apply to purchases between July 28 and December 31, 1992. Also, capital gains rate cuts were excluded.

I once asked the folks in a Liberty, Mississippi, drug store that I'm fond of if they wanted a capital gains cut. Without exception, every hand in that room went up overwhelmingly signaling yes.

I know, and the Mississippians in Liberty know the importance of tax relief. That is why HUD Secretary Jack Kemp and I, along with five others, recently sent a memo to the Bush campaign chairs outlining what we feel is essential for economic recovery.

In it we called for no more tax hikes or increased government spending. America needs across-the-board income-tax rate reduction, a less complex tax system and a capital gains cut. America needs to make government reevaluate all spending, regulate less and eliminate waste.

The hardworking people of this country must have tax relief. They have pulled the wagon of mismanagement until they can pull no more. It's time to cut taxes and abolish wasteful government spending.

EYES ON MISSISSIPPI

By Bill Minor

Mississippi still up for grabs in presidential race

Why, many asked, did President Bush choose Mississippi as the state where he would launch his re-election campaign, coming immediately here to this coastal city from the Houston convention on a resurging tide.

Not even Clarke Reed, his Mississippi chairman, knew the answer. In fact, Reed had not asked the president to make Mississippi his initial campaign stop. Bush made the decision himself and let Reed know afterwards.

This is just my theory, but it could be that Bush saw Mississippi as something of a good luck charm as a spot to kick off a campaign. It worked nicely for Ronald Reagan in 1980 when he came to the Neshoba County Fairgrounds in his first stump appearance two days after getting the nomination in Detroit.

The Reagan trip to Neshoba brought down national criticism because it was the site of the brutal slaying of three young civil rights workers in 1964, and Reagan made no mention of the murders while skirting the entire subject of civil rights.

Typically, Reagan let the criticism just roll off his back as he proceeded to harvest a bumper crop of votes of thousands of erstwhile southern Democrats and defeat a sitting president from the South.

Bush, tie-less and his shirtsleeves rolled up, left no doubt when he bounded onto the platform set up at Jones Park here last Friday that he is conceding no southern state to another presidential candidate from the South, Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton.

Certainly, Mississippi, now with a Republican governor and lieutenant governor, as well as both U.S. Senators, and having given Bush his highest percentage of the vote four years ago, had to be considered a "safe" place for Bush to come. And Jones Park on the beachfront is the same spot where Reagan spoke one October day in 1984.

For what it is worth, Reagan outdrew Bush. In fact, the crowd for Reagan was the largest political gathering I have ever seen in Mississippi. I estimated Reagan's turnout at 20,000, Bush's at around 12,000. At that, there were several thousand school children bussed to the Bush affair as a field trip, amid ugly reports that several local school officials threatened children with disciplinary action if they brought Clinton-Gore paraphernalia with them.

Gov. Kirk Fordice weighed in pretty heavily also in trying to drum up a good crowd. Besides his own supporters, Fordice sent out invitations and special viewing area tickets to local public officials all over the state to come hear Bush. Evidently not many did.

Although the economy is the most serious problem facing the American people, Bush did not mention it once in his speech here. Instead, he stressed that the issue to be decided is one of trust between him and Clinton.

Bush gave a tip-off here of what kind of campaign we can expect him to wage against Clinton and his running mate, Tennessee Sen. Al Gore, Jr. and the prospect isn't pretty. Evidently, he is going after Clinton with knife-wielding ferocity.

The strategy of the Bush campaign apparently is to destroy Bill Clinton's character, and even using some distortion of the facts (as for example, his charge that Clinton had raised taxes in Arkansas 128 times, a figure the pro-business Wall Street Journal documented as patently wrong) along the way.

However, while the Bush campaign four years ago flattened Michael Dukakis with such blows as the Willie Horton ad, Clinton has shown already he is quick with the counter-punch.

The other day, Gov. Ann Richards of Texas, who knows something about mean campaigns herself, observed that the battle for Texas, one of the must-win states for Bush, is going to be so dirty, "it's going to be political pornography."

While the first poll in the presidential race in Mississippi a couple of weeks ago showed Clinton 10 points ahead, there's little doubt that Bush got a bounce here, as elsewhere.

Mississippi is up for grabs now, and the likelihood is it will stay that way.

IN CONGRESS

By Rep. Gene Taylor

Veterans' Affairs Committee affirms commitment to military

The House Veterans' Affairs Committee, chaired by U.S. Rep. Sonny Montgomery of Mississippi, has affirmed its commitment to our nation's veterans. During the 102nd Congress, the House has passed sweeping legislation that will expand various health benefits and services offered to veterans.

Furthermore, during the month of September, the House is expected to vote on the Veterans' Health Care Programs Amendments, which if passed would expand many of these benefits and services.

The measure, which I strongly support, will allow the Veterans' Administration (VA) and the Defense Department to provide grants to medical schools to establish centers that would perform research in health areas of specific concern to veterans.

The grants would also be used to develop physical facilities, acquire equipment and operate research centers. The measure authorizes $50 million each year from 1993 through 1996.

Furthermore, the bill would allow hospitals to provide care under contract in non-VA facilities to treat all disabilities. It would not make a difference whether the illness were service or non-service related. The provision will allow veterans to receive care when VA care is geographically inaccessible.

The measure also would assist VA hospitals in getting much needed, highly technical medical equipment. One provision authorizes the VA to enter into agreements with community health care institutions to jointly acquire major medical equipment for which the VA would pay no more than half the purchase price.

Sharing high-tech equipment with the public and private hospitals could save the VA millions each year and give veterans all over Mississippi and the country access to the most advanced equipment on the market today.

One final plus—the measure increases grants for home alterations. The bill increases grants for structural home alterations from $600 to $1,200 for non-service-connected disabled veterans. Service-connected disabled veterans' grants will increase from $2,500 to $3,300.

The measure, which has been approved by conference committee, has been sent to the Senate for approval. Upon its unexpected approval by both Congress and the president, I believe the measure will substantially enhance veterans health care all over South Mississippi and the nation. I commend chairman Montgomery for an outstanding job. Without his direction, many of these extended programs would have never been made available to South Mississippi's veterans.

I agree with Congressman Montgomery that our nation

Wildcats open season at home

Pearl River Community College has released its 1992 10-game football schedule, which includes four Thursday night encounters and two Saturday afternoon contests. PRC will provide local football-starved fans a treat as for us to get a jump on the season," said Willie Coats, PRC's second-year head coach and athletic director. "The Thursday night opener at home will give our entire student body a chance to get involved and it will also allow us opener against Memphis State in Hattiesburg Sept. 5.

Most North Division teams play all their home games on Thursdays.

"I anticipate a tremendous crowd for our first game," said Coats. "Everyone will be ready for a good football game when that Thursday rolls around."

After Northeast, the Wildcats will hit the road to play Hinds at 7 p.m. Sept. 12 and Holmes at Goodman at 7 p.m. Sept. 17.

The Cats will then have a little extra time to prepare for rival Jones at home Sept. 26. Five days later the Wildcats will head for Fulton to take on the Itawamba Indians in a 6 p.m. Oct. 1 contest.

That contest will allow the Wildcats 10 days to prepare for arch rival Mississippi Gulf Coast at home Oct. 10 in the Dobie Holden Stadium.

The following week PRC will entertain East Central at 2:30 p.m. in an Oct. 17 homecoming fracas.

Pearl River will play nemesis Copiah-Lincoln, the team that has knocked the Wildcats out of the playoffs two of the last three years, at 4 p.m. Oct. 24 in Wesson.

The following Thursday, Oct. 29 the Southwest Bears will host the Wildcats in a 7 p.m. game in Summit. PRC will end its regular season at home against Mississippi Delta on Nov. 7.

"I'm happy with our schedule," said Coats, who led the Wildcats to a 6-4 record last year. "It should be an exciting year and a nip and tuck battle down to the wire."

Pearl River Community College coaching staff

the Wildcats open at home 7 p.m. Thursday, September 3 against North Division Northeast.

Most local area high schools will not begin play until Sept. 4 and regular Division I play begins Sept. 5.

"There are several reasons to have an extra few days to prepare for Hinds Sept. 12, our first South Division foe."

Coats aid moving PRC's home opener from the traditional Saturday night slot to Thursday will eliminate the conflict with the University of Southern Mississippi home and season

Volkssport hosts walk, bike events

The Magnolia State Volkssport Club in Biloxi is conducting a 10K (6.2 miles) walk, a 25K (15.5 miles) bike and 50K

(31 miles) bike at Paul B. Johnson State Park on Saturday, Sept. 12 and Sunday, Sept. 13. Paul B. Johnson State Park is located 10 miles south of Hattiesburg, on US-49.

The events are sanctioned by the American Volkssport Association (AVA). Volkssport programs consist of non-competitive recreational events which include walking, swimming, bicycling, cross-country skiing, and roller skating.

Participants may choose one, two or all three events, and the events can be started between 7 a.m. and 1 p.m. on either day.

Events must be completed by 4 p.m. of the same day they are started. Anyone registering for and completing any event is eligible to receive an event participation award and AVA credit for participation and distance. The events are free for those who do not desire the award or AVA credits.

The walk follows a lake shoreline and includes a 1.5 mile forest trail which is not suitable for strollers and wheelchairs. Handicapped participants are given credit for distance completed.

The 50K route includes a 1.5-mile long gravel road which can be traveled by all types of bikes at reduced speed. Walkers and bikers will be required to cross a 100-foot-long concrete ford which may contain as much as 12-inch of water.

For pre-registration or additional information, call 897-1057 (Biloxi/Gulfport), or 869-6951 (Long Beach/Bay St. Louis).

Bay-Waveland Yacht Club wins second in Jr. Lipton

The Bay-Waveland Yacht Club finished second overall in the Junior Lipton Cup regatta last weekend at Southern Yacht Club in New Orleans.

Gulfport won the event with seven points; Bay-Waveland came in second with 7½.

The last race determined the final standings. Had BWYC finished third, the club would have brought home the trophy, and earned the privilege of hosting next year's junior regatta. However, Southern Yacht Club edged Bay-Waveland out for third.

BWYC did well in all three races, finishing first in the first race, third in the second and fourth in the third.

Mallory Mestayer skipped the first race, with Wayne Murphy and Kippy Chamberlain as crew. Murphy ran the second race as skipper, with Charlie Merrigan and Emily Taylor as crew. In the third race, Merrigan was skipper, and Taylor and Gilly Chamberlain were crew.

The Mississippi Coast yacht clubs captured all three top spots in the Junior Lipton regatta, with Gulfport finishing first, BWYC second and Pass Christian third.

Gulfport will host next year's Junior Lipton competition.

Average teens don't end up in youth court

By Thomas Erhardt
Hancock Co. Youth Court Counselor

"He's just an average teenager." That statement is not true if it is heard in the Hancock County Youth Court, as it so often is repeated by parents of teenagers before the Court for breaking the law.

In 1991 the county school-age population was 5,772.

The Hancock County Youth Court, in connection with violations of the law, dealt with approximately 8 percent of that population. The word "average" generally means about 50 percent to most people and is a long way from the 8 percent whom we dealt with through the Court.

Further data crunching revealed that 68 percent were white and 78 percent were male. About 17 percent of the cases involved at least one charge of a felony violation such as burglary, grand larceny, forgery, aggravated assault or a narcotic drug offense.

Weapons, such as guns and knives, were used in 4 percent of the cases. Drugs and alcohol were substantiated in 2 percent and 22 percent of the cases, respectively.

Violation of probation occurred in 18 percent of the cases, while only 4 percent were violations of parole. Only 27 percent of the cases handled by the youth court had the child living with both parents; whereas, in 39 percent of the cases, the child was living with only the mother.

In 43 percent of the cases

Average teenagers do not burglarize homes or hang out on the streets after curfew or carry guns and knives to school.
—Erhardt

the child was below his expected grade level in school and 45 percent of the cases also had records of school behavioral problems.

In a comparison of the statistics from 1991 to the figures for the first six months of 1992, we can see that the youth court has had a beneficial effect on the delinquency rate in Hancock County. Data shows a 16 percent decrease in substantiated alcohol use, a 3 percent decrease in burglaries, and a 34 percent decrease in children in need of supervision.

Does the Hancock County Youth Court have an impact on teenagers? Yes, it does; but not on the average teenagers, because statistics clearly demonstrate that we do not deal with the "average teenager."

Average teenagers do not burglarize homes or hang out on the streets after curfew or carry guns and knives to school.

Average parents know exactly where their children are at all times and know exactly what they are doing and who their friends are. If they don't, they find out very quickly and correct the problem effectively.

It is much more common to find the 8 percent in youth court answering to the judge why their child burglarized and vandalized a home, and telling how they are going to pay for the damages than to find the parents of the average teenager in court.

Education workshops

Stennis Space Center offers 18 free opportunities for teachers to learn Eighteen free education workshops will be offered during the 1992-93 school year by the Teacher Resource Center at NASA's John C. Stennis Space Center.

In conjunction with other ongoing educational programs at Stennis, the workshops are designed for educators of all grade levels, K-12, and are conducted by aerospace education specialists with assistance by scientists and engineers from NASA and other agencies located at SSC.

A series of mathematics workshops will be offered in the fall. The series will span teachers of all grades and will begin Sept. 17 with a workshop for mathematics teachers of grades K-2.

The mathematics workshops will feature new interactive strategies for teaching math concepts and hands-on activities that teachers can utilize in their classrooms to make teaching math exciting.

The mathematics workshop for teachers of grades K-2 will be followed by one for teachers of grades 3-5, grades 6-8, and grades 9-12.

New workshop this year include the Astronomy Workshop for Secondary Teachers, a workshop designed to introduce participants to constellations, future NASA astronomy projects and the discoveries of the Hubble Space Telescope.

The Science Fair Projects for Elementary School and Science Fair Projects for Middle and High School will provide teachers with innovative ideas for science fair projects as well as information as to what science fair judges look for.

In another workshop, Using Space To Teach Language Arts, teachers will build a language arts "Space Shuttle" from a milk carton and learn other creative ideas for making language arts skills fun for students. More new workshops for 1992-93 include: Journey to the Moon, a workshop which explores the history of space travel; Women in Science Workshop, a workshop which will focus on untraditional careers for women and preparations necessary to equip female students for these challenging new positions; Geography and Map Skills students in geography; and Space Program Spinoffs, a workshop which will discuss various spinoffs from the NASA space program. Spinoffs are commercial products and processes created when private enterprise adapts new aerospace technology to take advantage of opportunities in the marketplace.

St. Clare teachers continue education

"Continuous professional growth is a value that we at St. Clare School try to instill in our students and model ourselves," said Sister Jane, principal.

The research that is being done now in the field of education is giving teachers and administrators so much new information about how all students can be taught most effectively.

The entire St. Clare faculty will be utilizing 'The Master Teacher' program of in-service training. Teachers will study, results-oriented teaching, discipline, motivation, professionalism, and ethics among many other important topics. They will be given the opportunity to enroll in a distance-learning course based on 'The Master Teacher' and other selected writings in order to receive three semester hours of graduate credit.

"Our aim is to help our teachers have a more complete understanding of what motivates each individual child of St. Clare School, and how to nurture each child more fully," she said.

Weems makes dean's list

She's a heartbreaker.

She's taken the plunge out of high school and into a pool of statistics. You're worried sick about her future.

She needs a job, but what can she do without training?

Job Corps can help her get an education, learn job skills, and earn money while she learns. Some centers offer child-care programs too. And the best part? It's all tuition-free!

If your heartbreaker is 16 to 21 and looking for direction, call Job Corps; 1-800-338-7899 or visit your state Employment Service office.
